

ANDREW R. FLYNN is a vice president of The Bank of New York Mellon Trust Company, N.A., a subsidiary of The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation. He is the product manager for municipal and corporate finance in the Global Corporate Trust Division. Based in San Francisco, Andrew is responsible for existing product management, new product development and strategic planning for the Municipal and Corporate Finance Group.

Prior to joining The Bank of New York Mellon, Andrew served as a financial advisor, developing municipal capital plans and advising on debt issuance including traditional and derivative structures, and as a debt program analyst where he designed and implemented municipal debt management software for state and governments. He has worked with a wide range of public and private sector entities on developing best practices around the uses of financial technology to meet evolving market and regulatory demands.

He has written articles for The Bond Buyer on the credit crisis and spoken on various industry topics at public finance conferences including the IMN California Public Finance Conference, the Florida GFOA School of Government Finance and the California Treasurers Association.