OVERVIEW

NASACT is pleased to announce the latest in its series of training events addressing timely issues in government accounting, auditing and financial management.

At our most recent annual conference, we had several discussions about “intelligent automation,” or using technologies like Robotic Process Automation or Artificial Intelligence to significantly reduce the time and energy required for routine tasks, thereby freeing up the ‘human’ staff to do more strategic and customer-service activities. This technology is developing quickly, and it is being very rapidly adopted in both private and public sector. Our next webinar on January 16 will include representatives from Accenture and likely some of their government clients to give an update from the annual conference and to talk about new developments in this area. You will not want to miss it!
