

OVERVIEW

NASACT is pleased to announce the latest in its series of training events addressing timely issues in government accounting, auditing and financial management.

Leaders face the historic opportunity (and challenge) to leverage the lessons of the pandemic, recapture what was good about the way work was done before and navigate their organizations into a new era of high performance and well-being. They must execute a more flexible, dynamic way of operating by reimagining how, when and where their people work. Cali Williams Yost, an internationally recognized workplace futurist and strategist with more than two decades of experience leading flexible work transformation, will share a strategic framework that simplifies and accelerates the system of change that leads to hybrid and remote work success, and inspires leaders to move boldly into the future.
